goneaway suppression

the suppression solution that makes your marketing budget go further

People move and change address frequently. According to Zoopla, the average UK family moves house 8 times in their lifetime and the latest census suggests that 7 million people change address every year. Data suppression is critical to keeping your data fresh and accurate whilst minimising the cost of wasted mailings to people who have moved away. ►

- Access to a cost effective, accurate data suppression solution is an easy way to reduce wastage and maintain a good clean, compliant customer database.

About Purifi

Compiled over many years, the Purifi database is the result of combining our extensive B2C data universe with the known home mover trigger data to identify the exact point when households are vacated. Every time we receive notification of a move we match the address to our consumer universe to find the vacating occupant of that property and add this information to the Purifi file. Purifi can be supplied as a complete file or we can provide a fully managed data cleansing service.

Purifi provides:

- 45 million household records with full postal contact details
- 50-100k new mover records every month (dependent on numbers of house sales)
- The most cost effective suppression solution available.
- Unique Feature: Confidence score segmentation & selection

Purifi Benefits

Reduce marketing wastage – ensure that you are not wasting £’000’s on mailing campaigns customers who have moved and have not updated you. Suppressing home movers from your data ensures that your marketing budget is not wasted.
